How do you figure out what to write about?

Many people like the idea of blogging, but are stymied when actually wanting to start writing. What to write about? How to write it? What if no one reads it? If this is you—and you live in the Metro DC area—come to a workshop I am leading next Tuesday, July 31 in Silver Spring. I will teach you how to write your blog. You will leave the session with several blog post ideas, a completely written blog post, and lots of information to get you blogging.

All the details and registration are available here:

http://learntowriteyourblog.eventbrite.com/

I hope to see you Tuesday! If you can’t make it next week, and you are interested in the workshop, please drop me a line or a comment.